REMOVAL OF MR. NORTON FROM THE HIO School -The following appeared as a commualcation in the Journal of Monday morning,

There has been a very unhealthy excitement in our city because of the recent removal of Mr. Norton, the excellent teacher of the High Mr. Norton, the executive and the least opporSchool, without his having had the least opportunity of replying to any charges, defending his conduct or explaining the reasons for his course—a right which the law gives a common thief. He was tried, convicted and ejected from his place without knowledge that a charge had been preferred against him; and the first notification of his removal was through the Superincesion of his removal was through the Superinces of the Superin cation of his removal was through the Superintendent, Mr. Kingaley, on whose application to the Board he was unceremonicasly diagraced.

Where the hasty action of the Board is unknown, he will appear as a dishonored man, and when it is considered that he relies upon his vocation as an instructor for a livelihood, the damaging effect of the conduct of the Board is very apparent. So far as the writer knows the members of the Board (and he believes he members of the Board (and he believes he knows thom all well) they are gentlemen of high character for justice; and therefore their conduct seems unaccountable.

It may be that the Board would very properly have removed Mr. Norton after having heard his defense; but it was due to him, due to the his defense; but it was due to him, due to the his defense; but it was due to the messives.

MARCUS CHILDS'S.

MARCUS CHILDS'S.

MARCUS CHILDS'S. have been heard before he was sentenced. Jos. S. Sullivant, Esq., President of the Board, did not participate in the precipitate proceeding, being absent. If it is not the custom to give a teacher the right to appear before that august tribunal to defend himself against charges which affect his professional reputation and personal interest, it is time the custom he echolars, due to the parents, due to themselves, to justice and right, that the accused should and personal interest, it is time the custom be adopted and justice be done, so that the doings of the Board smell less of inquisition, and more of right. The Superintendent of the school the writer knows, and believes him to be a gentleman; but he is not infallible, and his charges against Mr. Norton may have been founded in error or misunderstanding, and admit of reason able explanation, which the Board refuses to

Common sense teaches that a man of good character should not be assailed by his superior without the right to defend. That no teacher who has discharged his duty so well should be denied a hearing on the testimony of the com-plaining witness, given in his absence. That no teacher who was so uniformly popular among his pupils, and so well beloved that all of them pined in a petition to the Board for his rem statement, should have been "kicked out," against all their entreaties and tears, without chool-board which is given a felon in the courtagainst the desires of all the parents of the holars by a secret court, who refuse to hear any but the prosecuting witness, is at least remarkable. It is due to the scholars, due to the public, due to Mr. Kings- Connecting at Cleveland with the LAKE SHORM RAIL-ley, due to Mr. Norton, due to the School-Board, due to common decency, that the Board should reconsider its action, and ailow Mr. Norton to make his defense, if defense he has. If the Superintendent and he differ in their statements, other witnesses or circum stances may determine who is correct, and the one who is right ought to be maintained without regard to position. As the matter now stands, the conduct of the Board is unjustifia-ble, and their own characters as just men (which it is believed they are), demand an in vestigation in the presence of both parties. The public will not be satisfied with less, and no statement of the Board will relieve them of the charge that they have condemned a respectable man without a hearing, and had a first class teacher removed upon a charge they would not allow him to refute.

The public would like to know whether the trial of a teacher is a mere mockery of justice and whether the Board are mere cyphers in the hands of the Superintendent, as to the tenure of their employees, so that his prejudices or pusions may remove the most competent in-structors, and, in difficulties between Superin tendent and teacher, remove the teacher with out a hearing, although entirely in the right. Such folly is inconsistent with the age.

Mr. Reade has here written an historical nov el that is pleasant and touching to read. There is a power, a clear vivid life of description, and a real pathos in the last scenes of the book, an insight into the ways of a distant generation, an analysis and portraiture of character, which make this story not unworthy to take a place beside the historical romances of Scott. Mr. Reade, which extends to four volumes, is full of those affectations and quaintnesses in which he delights. ion it leaves is that of a very unusual impression it leaves is that of a very unusual degree of originality, pathos, and force. It is full of learning, of pictorial truthfulness, of shrewd reflection, and of happy touches. Few movels are so likely to take a strong hold, not only of the imagination, but of the memory of the reader, and this is a great success in the line of historical romance. * * * We compare this book with the novels of Walter Scott and it deserves to be compared with them nd it deserves to be compared with them.

"An English gentleman, formerly connected with the British Army, and who styles himself the 'Indian Botanie Physician,' has of late gained an extensive reputation here by his skill in curing all manner of complaints. Some of his patients I have conversed with, and they pronounce his remedies and mode of treatment as very superior. Some have been restored as if hymagic. The medicine he uses is distilled by himself from various herbs possessing rare curative properties.

"While acting to the army he devoted his leisure moments to a thorough study of the affects produced by certain medicinal roots and herbs on all manner of diseases. It seems he has found a sare and speedy remedy for all the 'ills that flesh's heir to.' His practice is already extensive and is daily increasing.
